

INTERFACE CONTROLS

Interface Type		Interface From...	Interface To...	Description	Other Information
OSI Application Layer		User	Web Client	This interface implements all system functionality. The user should be able to login, chat, then logout.	Example of a login screen presented to the user:
RESTful	Web Client	Server		The web client will access login, logout and update service over an HTTP call passing in required parameters in the URL. server?	Ex. To submit user credentials to login, the following URL would be constructed and submitted: Http://www.myserver.com/login?username='powerRangerFr34k'&password='ilovekittens'
UserMessage	Web Client	Web Client		Format of the user messages (instant messages). Message should contain User Id, Timestamp and Message Data.	better to list/document messages in a separate section <other supporting information>
JDBC	Server	Database		Standard for a java application interfacing with a database.	<other supporting information>
OSI Presentation Layer		<interface from>	<interface to>	<center description of interface>	<other supporting information>
OSI Session Layer		<interface from>	<interface to>	<center description of interface>	<other supporting information> remove layers not used, then just note that they are not used